

Darrick Johnson, Procter & Gamble

North American Family Care Go-to-Market Vice President

Darrick Johnson is P&G's Vice President of Family Care's Go-to-Market Operations. He has responsibilities for a 6-plant production network along with various contract manufacturing entities. He ensures the safe, quality, and efficient supply of Tissue and Towel products across North America.

He started his career outside of Scranton, PA in one of the largest P&G facilities world-wide where he began to learn his operations management and team leadership skills. He has since built extensive Product Supply and business experience having worked for nearly 30 years in multiple operations across numerous locations including Plant Manager of the Cape Girardeau Family Care Plant. The site made tremendous improvements in safety, quality, production, and cost efficiencies leading to recognition as one of the benchmark sites globally.

He also spent a number of years in the Hair Care business, where he had supply chain responsibility for products like Pantene and Old Spice, led the launch of several new products like "My Black is Beautiful", and owned the integration of new ventures including Bevel brands from the Walker Company. He has a tremendous passion for product supply, innovation, an insatiable drive for results, and an unending support of people.

Darrick is a graduate of Penn State University. He dedicates time to give back, providing leadership in the United Way and member organizations in his various locations and coaching youth basketball. He also serves the community through his active membership in the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity with such programs as Go-to-High School, Go-to-College, partnerships with Habitat for Humanity, and an annual MLK Blood Drive. Outside of his professional career, he's married with 3 daughters and a son. He enjoys traveling, coaching, working out
